Aims

The Henley Forum brings together business practitioners, industry thought-leaders and experts/academics to develop and share insights, which help organisations to respond flexibly to the knowledge and learning challenges dominating our uncertain and turbulent business world. A regular rhythm of workshops, seminars, discussion groups and research projects offers a rich menu of activities to support organisational development.

Benefits

Membership offers you the following benefits:

- An Advanced Course in KM: Experiential learning designed to help two people from your organisation to explore what constitutes good practice in organisational learning and knowledge work activities and how that can apply in your business.
- Regular opportunities for discussions with other business practitioners about approaches and solutions to current issues, good practice and lessons learnt plus an annual peer assist and co-ordination of site visits between members.
- New insights from participation in research projects that are tailored to your organisational issues. All research topics come from consultation with members about their current priorities and challenges.
- Support in applying project findings and guidance in your organisation through action learning groups, project briefings and one to one coaching by experienced coaches and experts in the field of knowledge and learning. Our Knowledge in Action series is designed to make KM practices relevant to non KM specialists.
- Our two day annual conference provides a concentrated update on thought leadership emerging in the fields of organisational learning and knowledge work.
- Access to member's website (includes full reports and guidance material generated from 55 completed projects to date) plus an extensive range of other KM resources.
- Access to dedicated collaborative spaces for action learning groups, research projects, and questions and answers.
